Are you frustrated by unfocused, boring meetings?
Do you and your staff waste precious hours at work sitting in meetings that don’t matter?
Is your staff disengaged and unproductive because of poorly run meetings?

Jim Ware is a meeting design strategist who has invested his entire career in orchestrating focused, engaging conversations that unleash individual creativity and build a powerful collective intelligence.

Raise the bar today on how your organization:

- Designs and schedules meetings
- Sets agendas and ensures they are followed
- Fosters a collaborative mindset
- Uses modern technology to augment and enrich conversations
- Creates a culture that values candor, confronts conflict, and moves from ideas to actions

With Jim’s guidance you and your team will develop new strategies for leading effective conversations. You will apply a new meeting mindset along with the skills and techniques to design and produce meetings that enable your organization to thrive in the future.

Although there are hundreds of books on how to run a meeting, none of them offers meaningful guidance for leading conversations in the digital age, when everyone has access to far more information than they can possibly absorb – and plenty of ideas they want to share.

In short, most of us don’t know how to blend individual talents, styles, and experiences to achieve peak performance in our organizations and personal satisfaction in our employees.

In a world where ideas matter, a leader’s most important role is not commanding and controlling; it is guiding the conversation, asking the right questions, and listening for insights and ideas that add value.

Testimonials

Jim Ware is an incredibly insightful futurist who knows how to turn visions into real-world results. He taught me how to communicate effectively with the C-Suite; but more importantly he showed us how to focus our human and physical assets more directly on meeting our customers’ needs.

Diane Coles-Levine, Founder of Workplace Management Solutions and former Chair of the IFMA Foundation

Jim has staked out a reputation for deep, innovative thought and the ability to deliver the message of design thinking successfully. Many of us have enjoyed his newsletters, focus groups, and think tanks over the years. He has managed to provoke and inform us with wit, charm, and grace.

Christopher Hood, Managing Director, Workplace Innovation, CB Richard Ellis

Jim continually brings a fresh perspective on the changing nature of work. A passionate collaborator, Jim applies his skills as a futurist with his clients, discovering ways for them to better leverage their talent.

Mark Gorman, Vice President, Ciena

Like most executives I spend most of my waking hours in meetings. With digital technology transforming the way we work, we desperately need to rethink how to make those meetings matter. I highly recommend Jim Ware to anyone who wants to lead more effective meetings.
